Reina's Reads

by Reina Pimental '21

I just want to give a special welcome to all the incoming freshman and hope you guys stop by the library to check out some books and everything the library has to offer!!!

Noggin by John Corey Whaley

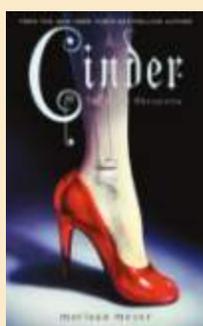

Imagine: one second you're dead and the next, you're not. Travis was thrown into a whirlwind of propaganda, pain, and confusion. He choose to enter a program that would preserve his head and attach it to a donor body when the technology was available. Being in the last stages of cancer, he had very few options left, but the technology progressed much faster than anyone could imagine. Only 5 years passed - just enough time for those closest to him to mourn his death and try to move on with the gaping hole he left in their lives. Between his newly engaged girlfriend, who he last saw crying through a goodbye, and his best friend living a lie, there's also the fact that his body used to belong to someone else, someone else who also left gaping wounds. Who did he leave behind? ...siblings? ...loving parents?

The Kite Runner by Khaled Hosseini

Hosseini's heart-wrenching story is so detailed that the readers can't help but experience Afghanistan along with Amir, who, despite being born with wealth and a well-respected father, experiences great change, suffering, jealousy and regret. This book also helps broaden our knowledge of this country. Even though we see stories unravelling on the news, it never truly feels real until you see someone's life unfolding in your lap.

Cinder (The Lunar Chronicles) by Marissa Meyer

The Cinderella story meets a futuristic world where cyborg implants are used to save lives. Plague sweeps the globe, leaving not even the queen or king untouched. When the Lunars, a different species of people, get involved with Earth, Cinder finds herself trapped in a dangerous game of romance, politics, and mystery.

If anyone has a book recommendation that's not in the OLP Library, I'd love to hear it! Please email me at rpimental2021@aolp.org and maybe next time you visit, you'll see your favorite book available for check out.

...and Mr. White is too!

I'll be helping out in the library for the fall semester so please swing by with any research or writing questions! I studied English in college and I love the whole process of critical reading and analysis. This fall, I'm hoping to read as many books as possible, so reach out with any recommendations (or if you want to challenge yourself too). I'm also working on a collection of short stories and I'd love to trade ideas or share projects with anyone else doing their own creative writing!

Here's just a few of my all-time favorite reads:

- The Lord of the Rings - J.R.R. Tolkien
- Hard-Boiled Wonderland and the End of the World - Haruki Murakami
- Pride and Prejudice - Jane Austen
- The Sun Also Rises - Ernest Hemingway
- The Murder of Roger Ackroyd - Agatha Christie
